LIVING IN MACON, GEORGIA

Macon, Georgia is situated south of metropolitan Atlanta and within driving distance to the mountains and barrier islands of Georgia. We are a family-oriented community, rich with values and traditions while progressing with new ideas, exciting growth, and creative talents.

A multitude of Indigenous peoples were the first inhabitants of the area that would later become known as Macon, settled by Europeans in 1809. Named for North Carolina statesman Nathaniel Macon, the economy thrived thanks to the Ocmulgee River. Macon is the seat of Bibb County and lies near the state's geographic center, about 85 miles southeast of Atlanta. It is often referred to as the “Heart of Georgia,” both because of its location and its status as a major transportation hub. Macon is on Georgia's Fall Line, meaning it is situated where the mountains of North Georgia meet the flat plains of South Georgia. With exciting musical heritage, picturesque architecture, and a rich historical past, Macon is the retail, medical, financial, educational, and cultural center for the region.

In the 2020 census, Macon had a population of 157,346. As the fourth-largest city in Georgia, Macon has plenty to offer, but doesn't have the congestion and pollution of larger cities. Cost of living in Macon is very modest and quite below the national average. Macon has a subtropical climate – summer months are hot, spring and fall months are long and pleasant, and winters are relatively mild. As a “college town,” Macon is home to not only Wesleyan College, but also Mercer University, Middle Georgia State University, and Central Georgia Technical College.

Macon has a rich heritage and boasts residents that have been influential in the music scene of the country. Musicians who called Macon their hometown include the Allman Brothers Band, Otis Redding, Randy Crawford, Lena Horne, and Little Richard, amongst others. Historic venues, such as the 40 Watt Club in the Classic City and Hargray Capitol Theatre, host new talent along with popular acts. Macon is home to various museums and major attractions, including the Georgia Sports Hall of Fame and many Southern Historic Landmarks. The Ocmulgee Mounds National Historical Park dates back 17,000 years and tells the story of the earliest inhabitants of the Macon area, while the Museum of Arts and Sciences provides an engaging space for scientific exploration and artistic appreciation. History enthusiasts can delve into the past at the Cannonball House, which offers insights into Macon's Civil War-era history.

The residents of Macon sometimes call their town the “Cherry blossom capital of the world.” At one time, Macon had more than 300,000 Yoshino Cherry trees. The Cherry Blossom Festival is an annual spring festival that draws thousands each year to Macon to showcase its venues, locations, entertainment, arts and crafts, shows, services, and, of course, its beautiful cherry blossoms.

Although Macon has plenty to keep you busy on the weekends, it is easy to get away if you do have the urge to take a weekend trip. Macon is on I-75 and I-16, which will take you north to Atlanta and southeast to Savannah, both great spots for a weekend getaway. Macon also provides close proximity (2-3 hours) to beaches of Florida, Georgia & Carolinas as well as mountain ranges of Tennessee, Carolinas, and Georgia.
